Paul Johnston,

Dear Paul

Re: Birmingham Children's Hospital Blantyre Malawi Partnership

I am writing to thank you very much indeed for your amazing success in contributing fob watches for the paediatric nurses in Malawi. The addition of spare batteries is so wise!

As you know, our partnership with the children's department of the Queen Elizabeth Central Hospital, Blantyre, Malawi is highly valued by our colleagues in Africa, both for the actual items that we are able to support them with and also for the philosophy of the partnership itself.

We greatly appreciate the effort that so many people are making and everyone's contribution is greatly valued.

Your contribution really will help the way sick children are monitored. Not only for the individual children themselves but also towards improving the morale, recruitment and retention of essential health care staff. It is doing the simple things well that makes all the difference.

Hermione has taken some lovely photos of one of the nurses Phoebe receiving her watch. Phoebe and her colleague Miriam have spent four weeks with us learning skills that they will take back and teach in Malawi.

With very many thanks and kind regards.

Yours sincerely
